VIEWERS KILL SPRING AVENUE IMPROVEMENT

REPORT ON PROPOSED STREET
OPENING FILED WITH AUDI-TOR GILL, SATURDAY.

LOCUST STREET ALSO KILLED

No Further Action Is Anticipated On Either of These Streets During Present Year.

The viewers appointed by the Board of Commissioners at their March meeting to pass on the construction of Spring Avenue north from Washington street to Melrose Avenue, or to Tigert street, filed their report Saturday with Willis E. Gill, county auditor. It was unfavorable and recommended that the proposed improvement be killed.

This is the second proposed street opening north from Franklin street, that the commissioners have killed recently. Prior to the action of the viewers on Spring Avenue, the opening of Locust street north to Higert street was killed by remonstrance in the session of the commissioners. Then followed the turning down of the opening of the next street west by the viewers, and the chances are that neither will come up again this year.

CLINTON FIVE REGIONAL NET WINNER HERE

KELLYMEN NOSE OUT TIGER
CUBS IN FINAL GAME,
25 TO 24.

LOCALS LEADING AT HALF

Inability To Hit Fouls Gives Clinton
The Ball Game. Big Crowd
In Gym.

Clinton won the regional high school basketball tourney Saturday night in this city by nosing out the Tiger Cubs, 25 to 24 in a thrilling battle. Greencastle led at the half, 19 to 17. The game in detail follows:

Antonini, Clinton, because of his height, got the tip-off at the start, but the Cubs soon gained possession of the ball and Crawley, on a beautiful piece of pass work, went under the basket for the first score of the tilt. Score, Greencastle, 2; Clinton, 0. Clinton was over-anxious and was good fouled. Tobin fouled Cogan and he made good the first point for Clinton, score, 2 to 1 in favor of the Cubs. Cogan again crashed through with a field goal and Tobin retaliated with a beautiful shot from over half the length of the floor, making the score 4 to 3 in favor of the Cubs.

Making good on a foul throw, Clinton tied the score. Tobin then made another shot and put the Cubs in the lead, 8 to 6. Gillott then duplicated his previous shot and put the Clintonians in the lead for the first time, Clinton, 10; Greencastle 8. Greencastle called time out.

On a pass from Masten to Lear under the basket, Lear made good the attempt and the score was tied. On the next play, Tobin took the ball away from Clinton at the center of the floor and shot, putting Greencastle in the lead, 12 to 10. On the next play after making a reverse turn, Crawley annexed another two pointer, increasing the Cub lead to 14-10. Clinton then called time out.

After getting the four point lead, the Cubs started their delayed offense. Shannon, who was substituted for Cogan, shot from the center of the floor and registered, score Greencastle, 14; Clinton 12. Foncannon was fouled by Masten and the Clinton guard made good both shots, tying the score at 14. A Clinton forward fouled by Brown, made good the try from the charity stripe, putting his team in the lead for the second time, 15 to 14.

Lear was fouled and tied the score on the first and put the Cubs in the lead when he made good the second attempt. Greencastle, 16, Clinton, 15. On the next play on a pretty pass from Tobin, Masten swished the draperies, but Foncannon duplicated the feat with another shot from the field, making the score 18 to 16. The Cubs then made good another foul and the half ended 19 to 16 in favor of the fighting Tiger Cubs.

The play during the first half was featured by fast and accurate passing and shooting on the parts of the sharpshooters of both aggregations. Some of the prettiest and most accurate plays were executed during the initial stanza with the Cubs especially exhibiting one of the best played frays in which they have participated.

It was not possible to pick any individual star during the first half with all five players making a grand whole for the Greencastle high school.

In the opinion of the fans, the game was fully as good as the Bainbridge game and with as much enthusiasm. Lear continued his stellar performance of the second game in the afternoon and was ably assisted by Masten, Tobin, Crawley and Brown. The latter, during the first half played one of the best games of his career as a back guard.

For the first two minutes of the second half, neither squad made any points. Masten then made the Cub total 20 with a shot from the charity line. On the next play the giant Clinton center knocked the ball clear to the basket, Gillott putting the sphere through the hoop.

With the count standing 20 to 19 in their favor, Tobin made a beautiful shot from the side of the floor and then duplicated his feat with another marvelous shot from the center of the floor, putting the Cubs out in front by the score of 24 to 20.

Sike Kelly's proteges then called for time-out with the count standing against them 24 to 20.

Marsh put his team in the running with another foul but a moment later Brown was fouled and made good the attempt. With eight minutes to play, and a three point margin, the Cubs again started their delayed offense.

Held balls were frequent with both teams fighting hard. Shannon hit from the floor and made the score, Greencastle 24; Clinton, 23.

Shannon made good from the charity stripe with the point that tied the score at 24-all and two minutes play. After a series of plays on the next tip, Antonini was fouled and walked calmly down the floor to the foul line and dropped the ball through the hoop, for Clinton's twenty-fifth point and the lone tally that meant victory for the Vermillion county school.

A great deal happened in the next minute and forty seconds of play with the Cubs fighting to win the battle. But the breaks of the game were against them as the Greencastle boys missed four chances from the foul line and one underbasket shot rolled around the hoop, dipped in and then finally out amid the groans of the local fans.

Clinton played good ball to win and both the teams and Coach "Spiko" Kelly were good sportsmen.

BAINBRIDGE MAN ROBBED

"WILDCAT" GRAY HELD UP BY TRIO EARLY SUNDAY MORNING.

E. L. "Wildcat" Gray, garage owner and basketball fan, living at Bainbridge was held up, robbed and left tied up in his place of business early Sunday morning, according to reports received here. It is said, three strangers left their car at the Gray garage Saturday night and told Mr. Gray that they wanted to get an early start Sunday morning for Kentucky.

When Mr. Gray reached his garage, he opened the door and was met by a man with a big gun, who ordered him to the rear. There he wired his arms behind him and also wired his feet together. There were two inside of the garage. They had knocked the lock off the safe and it looked as though it had been filled with nitroglycerine, as a battery was attached outside, but it had not been blown. The couple took $5.50, and went east in a high powered car. The party who left their machine, called within a few minutes, but they had nothing to do with the robbery.

MANY PERISH IN BRAZILIAN LAND SLIDE

MORE THAN 100 BODIES RECOVERED IN DISASTER AT SANTOS.

SANTOS, BRAZIL, Mar. 12. (UP)—Loosened boulders on Mont Serrat today threatened fresh damage to Santos, where more than a thousand workmen were attempting to recover bodies of victims of Saturday's disastrous landslide.

One part of the hill today was said to be loosening and threatening the city. Should this occur the disaster would be even greater than the Saturday occurrence.

More than 100 bodies already have been recovered from the ruins left by Saturday's mountain slide.

GOOD SERMONS ARE GIVEN BY CITY PASTORS

"RE-INVESTMENTS OF LIFE"
DISCUSSED BY REV. VICTOR
L. RAPHAEL.

MANY ATTEND SERVICES

Congregations Are Large At Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian Churches. Sermons Good.

Speaking in the Methodist church Sunday morning on the theme, "A New Creature," based upon Paul's words in Galatians 6:15, Dr. Taylor dwelt upon the importance of a definite religious experience. He insisted that a mere compliance with religious ceremonies is not the guarantee of religious character. Reality in religion is revealed not in labels attached but in lives transformed. There is a state of being, a state of mind into which one may come, so different from any other previously experienced as to be essentially new. It is new in its outlook upon the world; "old things are past away, behold all things are become new." It is new in its affections; "The things I once loved, I now hate, and the things I once hated, I now love." It is new in its aspirations; "What things were counted pain to me these have I counted worthless, that I might gain Christ." It is new in its allegiance; "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, Christ liveth in me." Into such a state of victorious being Paul himself had come. It was the Cross of Jesus Christ which had effected this radical change in his life, a change as complete as though his old life had been crucified upon that cross, and he had been resurrected to newness of life. His old selfish self was gone, and a new self dominated by a new Spirit was alive. So complete had been the change that it could not be called a reformation, but a new creation.

Dr. Taylor cited the fact that this experience of Saul of Tarsus, afterward called Paul, was in perfect accord with the teaching of the great Master whom he followed. "Did not Jesus insist that those who would constitute the new society which he called 'The Kingdom of God,' must enter it by a process analogous to birth? 'Except a man is born from above, he can not see the kingdom of God.' Nicodemus found difficulty in understanding this remark and so may we. But Jesus reminded this learned ruler of the Jews that all about him were mysterious procedures which are not easily understood, but are none the less real. The blowing of the mind is a mystery, but it is an observable fact. The spiritual transformation of a human life is a mystery, but it actually occurs. It is a fact to be accounted for. Paul's explanation of the fact may have been faulty, his experience of the fact was convincing."

Dr. Taylor pointed out the important bearing that this individual experience of religion had upon the needed social reconstruction in the world. "A redeemed society will be the achievement of redeemed individuals. There is great need for social reconstruction whereby the causes of war and poverty and needless suffering and race antipathies shall be done away. Such social reform can be successfully undertaken only by men and women in whose lives the perfect reign of God has been established, in whom the old selfish self has been crucified, and the socially-minded Christ has been enthroned."

In speaking of what the Church has to offer men, Dr. Taylor said, "The Church has no more important task than to hold out to men the opportunity for this birth from above. It may be put even stronger, the Church is under perpetual obligation to make plain to men the imperative necessity for the new birth if they are to come to their own high destiny and to make full contribution to the welfare of society. E. Stanley Jones says, 'When the Church loses its power to convert, it loses its right to be called a Church.'"

Presbyterian Church

Many may be classified as a receiver, for from birth to death he is constantly a recipient of the world in which he lives and moves, said Rev. V. L. Raphael in his Sunday morning message on "The Re-investments of Life." This human being upon his advent begins immediately to receive attention from physical objects—his parents. All during his life some form of the human element ministers to him. He comes into a natural world which offers untold resources for his use. Among these are food, clothing and shelter for his body, in addition to which are the ceive?"

Man is also to be classified as a minerals from the heart of the earth and a vast array of innumerable aids for his comfort. He early comes into contact with his fellow man and from him receives that which develops his social nature. He labors from day to day and is remunerated financially. He goes to school and acquires a trained mind. From childhood he is instructed by religious parents, is taught the Bible truths in the Church School, hears from the pulpit the message of the love of God, the offer of forgiveness, the death of Christ on the cross for his sins, the promise of eternal life through the resurrected Christ. The apostle Paul has rightly asked, "What hast thou that thou didst not receive. For the most part everything that comes into his hands becomes a part of him. He absorbs, he assimilates, he monopolizes all that the world offers him. Most of it he takes for granted belongs to him by right of possession. He satisfies the desires of his body, enjoys many comforts, accepts everything that passes his way. With his trained mind he builds his fortune, filling banks and barns. Possibly he will apply to his life his religious privileges, though this is the one object offered to him which he is less likely to use."

In the midst of a life of receiving does man recognize a source outside of himself or does he assume that what he has, he made himself? There are vast multitudes of men and women who know that "every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights." They bless the Lord for everything at all times. There are others who fail to comprehend this great truth. They use all they have for self and live indulgent, self-centered lives. How much happier would they be if it was borne in mind that success, for example, is by the providential guidance of God. As a result of his work, man receives a recompense, a part of which first should go to the great Giver in appreciation of his goodness. Man needs capital for operating and overhead expenses and a comfortable living, but God is entitled to his just share.

In view of what we all have at the hand of God it is our duty and privilege to re-invest what we receive in his cause. This will mean that, first, every person will profess faith in Christ; second, he will devote all or at least a portion of his life in service for him; third, he will share generously his possessions with God. A recent item in a newspaper states that the secret of prosperity among the six largest automobile companies is the putting of profits back into business, sometimes as much as fifty per cent. Why should not a Church member re-invest as largely as the business world in the great missionary and educational phases of the work of the Kingdom? We can at least begin with the tithe which belongs to God. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse.... and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Christian Church

Rev. B. M. Bruner, pastor of the First Christian Church, spoke Sunday evening on the subject "What on the Student's Mind About God." He read five questions which were published in the DePaul on the subject of God and then gave some of the most typical answers which he had received from the students. The first question was, "What does the concept God mean to college students?" Mr. Bruner said about seventy five percent of the answers indicated a very hazy conception of God on the part of the students. In many cases the answers revealed the fact that the student has accepted the traditional conceptions of the Church and has given the matter very little thought. However, the answers revealed the fact that some students are thinking about God and trying to get a more satisfying conception of Him.

The second question was, "Have modern scientific and philosophic conceptions changed the conception of God materially?" Most of the students answered this question with either a "yes" or a "no." Eighty per cent answered "yes." Many of the answers to this question also revealed the fact that the student does not have a very definite conception of God, and very little idea of what science and philosophy are. Some of the students are not aware of the fact that science and philosophy has made any difference in our conceptions of God. Here again, it is evident that many have accepted the conceptions which they have inherited from their parents and are not doing any real thinking about religious problems.

PORTLAND MILLS IS ON ANCIENT REDMEN'S TRAIL

REDMEN USED CAVE ON BIG RACCOON NEAR TOWN AS CARAVANSARY.

CLODFELTER'S SNAKE STORY

Grist Mill Built About 1821 And Indians Among Its Customers. Canoes and Flat Boats.

To those who like to dwell upon the potential romance of life of a century ago in this region, the writer suggests the Portland Mills locality, on Big Raccoon creek, a mile and a half north of State Road 36. The town, although now very large, generously gives portions of itself to four townships. Two are in Parko county.

The town is by no means decrepit, but it is without the clamor of railroads and of factories and not much sought by strangers: It rests quietly in a nook between hills that forest-shorten the distances; so that its inhabitants are not as much in contact with social disturbances as most communities are. What I mean, Portland Mills is old, but has grown old serenely, which is an achievement.

Visit the place any time you care to, but preferably in the late spring, when the air has become drowsy with the sun's sudden warmth, and the trees that clothe the bluffs across the stream have put on their new garments—when the music of the water falling over the old mill dam and crowding its way through the rifles below adds its sonorous influence to that generated by the atmosphere. That is the best time to secure a fitting reaction to dreams of the glamour of a century ago.

When the first white people went there, they found the region popular with the Indians who liked its wild beauty and who found fish and game there in abundance. The cave upstream a little way from the present town was used by the Indians as a sort of caravansary, even for some time after white people were comparatively common.

Portland Mills is on what was once a well-travelled Indian trail which branched off near Montezuma from the famous Tecumseh's trail, which highway had been traversed by moccasined feet and by spotted ponies during centuries, it is probable, and it is reasonable to believe that the branch which touched Portland Mills had been used by redmen almost as long. This trail led northeasterly to the large Indian town just north of where Roachdale is now located.

It is suggested that the existence of this trail was the cause of Portland Mills being settled by white families so early, for they, in some cases at least, reached the locality over the Indians' road, entering Putnam county from the southwest, from the Wabash river bottoms, rather than travelling through the dense forests that lay southward, on the more direct lines from Kentucky and Virginia.

It is probable that the first white man who settled there was David Logan Cunningham, great grandfather of the present generation of that name. He is said to have gone there in 1816. Moses Hart appeared in 1820; Samuel Steele and his son, George K. Steele, came in 1821 and built a great mill, later removing to Mansfield and the into Rosedale or Roseville. Alexander Harbison, father of Robert S. Harbison of Greencastle and James K. Harbison of Portland Mills, in 1830 went there with his father. He was then but ten years old. There were other white settlers between these two dates. So that the place appears to be about as any community in Putnam County.

The grist mill which Samuel Steele and his son built on Big Raccoon in 1821 was on the site of the present water-power mill now in operation there, it is said. The presence of the mill increased the popularity of the settlement with the Indians, who brought maize there for grinding, and who brought corn meal, giving furs in exchange.

The Indian Summer period was the favorite time of the year for the redmen to travel, frequent parties then traversing the trail, seeking their winter homes.

J. T. Clodfelter, who lives a short distance south of the town and who is a grandson of David Clodfelter, who entered land in the vicinity about 1831 told the writer he believed the United States government in early days reserved the Big Raccoon creek, from the Wabash river to Portland Mills, for transportation purposes, requiring mill dam builders to conform to certain regulations which permitted canoes and flatboats to be operated on the stream between the limits mentioned, without serious hindrance. Both white people and the redskins used these means of transportation.

J. T. Clodfelter relates a story of a big snake which should be preserved along with other lore of the region. His father, Solomon Clodfelter, when a young man started before sunup one morning to attend a "log-rolling" near Clinton Falls, and nearly stumbled on a big limb that lay across the trail through the woods. But the limb moved and made itself known as an immense rattlesnake. It was very sluggish, and the pedestrian had time to find a club, with which he broke the serpent's back. In its dying convulsions, it disgorged a fawn which it had been swallowing. The rattler measured eight feet long. When J. T. Clodfelter was a young man, a Mr. Webb, then in advanced age, told him he saw the snake, and vouched for the details related in the foregoing.

The last bear which was seen in the region, Mr. Clodfelter believes, was one which ran across the clearing at Union Chapel, west of Morton, while men were there digging the grave for the interment of his grandmother, about 1835.

(This is the second article of this brief series dealing with early days in Putnam county, by G. E. Black. The third will appear within a short time. It will include a remarkable narrative of adventure among the Indians, engaged in more than a century ago by a Portland Mills man, grandfather of a Greencastle woman. Editor of The Banner.)

Silver Tea Program Given.

Friday afternoon the "Silver Tea" given by the Bainbridge Home Economics Club was held in the school house.

The response to roll call was, Anecdotes about our President's lives.

Mrs. Frank Miller gave a paper, The Business of being a President's wife. Mrs. H. O. Bratton gave a paper on "Our Federal City."

"Origin of National Aids" by Mrs. Gray, who took Mrs. Eston Cooper's place. Mrs. R. B. Eads and Mrs. O. B. Lane gave a piano duet, and responded to an encore while the tea was being served.

There was over a hundred and fifty dollars contributed for the Century Fund. The collect was led by Mrs. Alice Priest.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Griffith of Indianapolis entertained Saturday for their daughter, Miss Jane Griffith, announcing her engagement to Cameron Moag, son of Dr. and Mrs. James A. Moag, and a former student at DePauw. Mr. Moag is well known here, being a grandson of P. R. Christie.

Dr. and Mrs. Murlin Feted.

Dr. and Mrs. Lemuel Murlin were feted at a banquet given in their honor, in Los Angeles, Saturday. A night letter received by Dr. Henry Longden this morning, from Bennett M. Allen, representing the DePauw alumni there, read as follows:

"Greetings to DePauw from her loyal sons and daughters at an annual dinner of South California Alumni Association. Resolutions passed unanimously expressing deepest appreciation of the great work of President Murlin and policies he has

The program of the afternoon will consist of reports given by the club presidents of the activities of the organizations during the year. There will be a musical program and a round table discussion on subjects of interest. The state president, Miss Marion Ingham of Ft. Wayne, will be present and address the delegates.

Miss Lucy T. Bowen and Mrs. Marie Zaharakos from this city will attend. Other delegates from this city will also probably be present at the meeting.

GOOD SERMONS ARE GIVEN BY CITY PASTORS

and personal for college students?" was mostly answered by "yes" or "no". Seventy five percent answered "yes". Here also is a reflection of inherited conceptions of God and a lack of vital thinking on the subject. Question four was "Do they feel that He is concerned with their personal problems? Does He answer prayer?" Most of the answers to this question were "yes" and "no" and eighty percent were "yes". "Where is God most fully revealed?" was the fifth question. About forty percent of the students either did not answer this question or missed the whole point of the question. Of those who answered about seventy five percent said that God was most fully revealed in nature. This certainly shows the influence of modern science on religious thought and conceptions.

Following the discussion of these questions and their answers Mr. Bruner said, "There are three major paths that lead to God which we will think of for a few moments. The first path that leads to God is that of nature. Man began to think of God when he found things in nature that he could not understand. Man's first conceptions of God came through his study of nature. Modern science, in leading us to the heart of the universe through its marvelous understanding of nature, is not really modern. It has simply taken up an old, old task and made it more helpful and interesting. The second path that leads to God is that of human nature. Man is the peak of God's creative power. When man began to study himself and realize the place of intelligence and purpose in life, that things are not made unless intelligence is back of them, they began to think of the God and creator of the universe in terms of intelligence and purpose. The supreme pathway to God has been through the perfect man Jesus of Nazareth. Man is the highest thing we know anything about. He was perfectly human. And when men lived with him they came to see that he was not only perfectly human, but humanly perfect. It was only natural that the day should come when men recognized and confessed him to be the Son of God. Therefore, when Jesus said, 'He that hath seen me hath seen the Father,' he was saying that in him men have the most perfect revelation of God. When Jesus called God
